

ROADSTER RACES NEXT WEEK

Driving Park Managers Arrange for Good Local Horses Next Saturday.

RUNNING RACES AT FALL FESTIVITIES

For the Latter Date the Promoters Promise Strings of Fast Ones from the Tracks of the East and Other Sections.

Messrs. Tutthill, Dennison and Keith, who have taken the management of the Omaha Driving Park, have determined to use every endeavor to revive interest in horse racing and will spare no effort to awaken the old-time enthusiasm in that sport.

Two meetings are in contemplation for the year. One is a matinee of the Gentlemen's Roadster club next Saturday. Probably there are a great many owners of fine horses and vehicles who do not know that there is such a club in existence, but the club has attained a considerable membership and almost any fine afternoon its members may be seen enjoying a spin on the boulevard around the driving park.

The big meeting, however, upon which the turf promoters of Omaha are relying will occur next September. It will be a ten days' running meet, with a list of purses that will aggregate from $5,000 to $10,000, according to the prospect.

The dates have been selected so that it will come during the Ak-Sar-Ben festivities, from September 11 to September 21. In fact the Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben have been invited to conduct the races, but have not accepted the invitation because of their many other obligations.

John Tutthill, who is the active promoter of this running meet, expects to leave about the middle of August for St. Louis and Chicago, with a view of bringing to the meeting during the following month many of the fine strings of horses that will be at the races in those cities before the season of the Ak-Sar-Ben closes.

His aim at the meeting is to set sensational records. As it will be a season of cheap rates, because of the Ak-Sar-Ben festivities, it is hoped that the meeting will demonstrate that the people of this section have not lost interest wholly in racing affairs and that the meeting will be productive of results that will encourage further turf meetings in Omaha.

satisfy the "major," who is of a religious turn of mind, and he went to Europe, where he has defeated the best of the continental professional riders without exception.

Owing to the new order of things, which brings a half dozen or more middle distance riders into one race, the promoters of the National Paced Racing circuit have adopted rules on the right to the pole and the passing of motor cycles. Some such rules are necessary when eight or nine motor tandems and seven bicycles occupy the track at the same time.

The best representative of France, so far as middle distance racing is concerned, is now in America in the person of Edouard Taylor, better known as "French Taylor."

How tremendous is the wear and tear upon the ordinary bicycle chain is but little appreciated by cyclists. C. R. Garrard, an English expert of much reputation, has analyzed the subject carefully and the results obtained by him are calculated to make the ordinary rider who thinks take off his hat to his chain and thereafter treat it more kindly and politely.

"If we reflect we must see that chains work under the worst conditions that any mechanical device having bearings (possibly could, namely: Oil, wet, grit, such as dirt, silicon, etc.); some 110 working joints, 110 working rollers and 550 separate pieces in all, loaded and jerked alternately from zero to 600 pounds.

A new woman is Mrs. Evan Devoe of Syracuse, N. Y. She has entered her 100th year and her ambition is to ride a bicycle and run an automobile.

"Why shouldn't I?" she said. "That is the thing to do these days, and I don't want to be behind the times. I never was and I'm not going to drop back in the procession at my time of life."

Tristram of Blent. Being An Episode in a Story of An Ancient House. BY ANTHONY HOPE.

(Copyright, 1901, by A. H. Hawkins.) CHAPTER XXX. The Next Generation.

Major Duplay had taken a flat in town and Mina had come up to aid him in the task of furnishing it. The major was busy and prosperous in these days. Blakhampton was turning out trumps for all concerned, for Iver, for Harry, for Southend and for him; the scheme even promised to be remunerative to the investing public.

"Yes, I think I've launched uncle," said she complacently, "and now I shall devote myself to the Tristrams."

"You've been doing that for a long time, my dear."

"I don't know what you'll find to do," she said. "I've supposed I have, really," she laughed. "I've rather a sort of Miss Swinkerton—I wish you knew her! Only I've devoted myself to one family and she does it for all the neighborhood."

"Her children and his! There ought to be something to look at," said Mina wistfully. "But we've not done with Harry himself, yet."

"I like her to be," she answered, with a laugh. "First, because I like being loved, and she loves me. And then I like you to be loved, and she loves you. Besides, she's been so closely mixed up with it all, hasn't she? She knew about you before I did. She knew Blent before I did. And it's not only with you and me, she knew your mother, Addie Tristram, too."

"I suppose it would be rather risky," said the imp, reluctantly. But she cheered up directly on the strength of an obvious "No, she's just adorable—and Mrs. Iver's got her a very good housekeeper."

"The old lady laughed as she turned round to welcome Lord Southend. "I've just met Mr. Disney," he remarked. "He doesn't seem to mind being out."

"I've got in for that while he was disappointed," said Southend. "I say, thank heaven he wouldn't have the vicinity!"

Omaha sportsmen are turning their attention these hot days to turtle doves, which, according to an old theory, are ready for the marksmen after July 1. According to the new game law it is lawful to kill doves and plover at this time of the year, but the law has failed to provide the plover. A party of Omaha men, who are so devoted to the gun that they are not stopped from hunting by the excessive heat, started to the western fields after plover last week. After two days' hunting, in which no bird was seen, they returned home and now go out in the early morning and shoot doves. The doves are said to be rather plentiful in this part of the country, but the average man does not like work well enough to carry a gun under a summer sun, so the birds are not hunted to a great extent."
